How to Contact Your Legislators

With more than 7,000 bills before the General Court each year, your legislator can serve you better if you help him with your views and recommendations. He will welcome your comments.

Communication with your legislators may be established in numerous ways. Although a face-to-face, personal meeting is most effective, a well-thought-out personal letter runs a close second.

When writing to your Senator or Representative, your letter may be directed to his residence or office. In most cases, however, legislators appreciate having letters about legislative matters addressed to them at the State House. The proper address and salutations are important.

Letters to Senators use the following form:

The Honorable John J. Doe
State House
Boston, Massachusetts 02133
Dear Senator Doe:

Letters to Representatives:

The Honorable John J. Doe
State House
Boston, Massachusetts 02133
Dear Representative Doe:

Home addresses of Senators and Representatives are listed in this Directory. The main listing is arranged by cities and towns. It is followed by alphabetic listings.

INCREASING YOUR LETTERS' EFFECTIVENESS

A few points to observe in increasing the value of your letters:

Be explicit. State clearly how proposed legislation interests you, how it will affect your community, your business. Explain why you favor or oppose a bill.

Be specific. Refer to the subject of the bill and the number of the bill if you know it. If you are for something, say so; if you are opposed to it, don't hedge.

Be businesslike. Brief but not terse.

Be friendly and polite.

Be appreciative. Acknowledge good votes and actions.

Request action. Your legislator is elected to act, so tell him what action you wish him to take.

Ask for an answer. You are entitled to know where he stands.

DO NOT FORGET THE LEGISLATIVE LEADERS

Increase the effectiveness of your letter-contacts with legislators by writing also to the House and Senate Leaders:

*The Hon. Kevin B. Harrington
President of the Senate
State House, Room 330
Boston, Massachusetts 02133
Dear Mr. President:*

*The Hon. Thomas W. McGee
Speaker of the House of Representatives
State House, Room 356
Boston, Massachusetts 02133
Dear Mr. Speaker:*

On major spending proposals write to:

*The Hon. John J. Finnegan
House Committee on Ways and Means
State House, Room 247
Boston, Massachusetts 02133
Dear Mr. Chairman:*

*The Hon. James A. Kelly, Jr.
Senate Committee on Ways and Means
State House, Room 332
Boston, Massachusetts 02133
Dear Mr. Chairman:*

ABOUT THE TELEGRAMS AND THE TELEPHONE

Telegrams can be effective if timely and specific. A letter explaining your position, followed by a telegram when the matter is under consideration comprise an excellent combination.

You can send fifteen-word Western Union Personal Opinion messages to your Federal and State legislators in Washington and Boston, and also to the President, Vice-President and Governor, for $2.00. Include your address at no additional cost. Telephone the message to the nearest Western Union office and specify that it is a Personal Opinion message.

Almost any weekday during the legislative session, you should be able to reach your Senator or Representative by calling the State House. This means of communication is best reserved, however, for use with those legislators whom you know.

To reach your Senator, call 727-2121, and ask for his or her Centrex number. To reach your Representative, call 727-2424, and request the number.

OTHER INFORMATION SOURCES

Legislative Research Council, composed of twelve legislators, determines "all policies with respect to a legislative research program . . . (of) . . . statistical research and fact finding . . ." The Council appoints a Legislative Research Bureau to accomplish this purpose.

Legislative Research Bureau has a dual responsibility. The first is to research and write major studies which the General Court annually requires to be made in depth of specified subjects. The second responsibility is for the Bureau to assist individual legislators, legislative committees and recess commissions with "statistical research of fact finding in connection with proposed legislation and other matters pertaining to the functions of the General Court."

Glossary of Legislative Terms

LEGISLATIVE SESSIONS

Formal session: Designated by the Speaker and President, to consider and act on reports of committees and matters in the Orders of the Day which may be controversial in nature.

Informal session: Designated by the Speaker, to consider reports of committees and matters in the Orders of the Day which are of a noncontroversial nature. Informal sessions may be called in an emergency.

Recess: Formal interruption of a session.

Adjournment: Termination of a session.

Prorogation: Termination of a legislative year by the Governor.

LEGISLATION

Petition: Vehicle used for filing various types of matters for consideration by the General Court; e.g., bills and resolves.

Bill: Accompanies petition and usually asks for legislative action of a relatively permanent nature—a general law or a special act.

Resolve: Accompanies petition and deals with matters of a more immediate or temporary nature; e.g., setting up a temporary study commission, payment of private claims, etc.

Resolution: May or may not accompany petition, depending on whether it is a Senate or House resolution; it deals with matters of a temporary nature and is used for congratulation, memorials to Congress, etc.

Order: A formal motion in writing, temporary in nature and used for such purposes as setting up investigation committees (as distinguished from commissions), changing the rules, and other parliamentary uses. Does not require the Governor's signature.

Money bill: Bills relating to state or county financial matters are sent to the Ways and Means or Counties Committees of the respective branches.

Emergency preamble: A statement of necessity for immediate action. Normally a law takes effect ninety days after it is passed. With an emergency preamble, it takes effect at once.

Filing date: Legislative petitions must be filed with the Senate or House Clerk by 5:00 P.M. on the first Wednesday of December. After that date, only a suspension of the rules by the two branches allows the admission of a petition.

General Law: A legislative act which applies generally to the Commonwealth and its citizens.

Special Act: A legislative act which refers to a specific city, town, district or other regional government agency or to a person or groups of persons, or is of limited duration.

COMMITTEES

Joint committee: Any of twenty-three joint committees, most consisting of six senators and fourteen or fifteen representatives; responsible for holding hearings and making recommendations on all matters referred to it.

Committee on Bills in the Third Reading: Must approve structural makeup of legislation prior to final reading in Senate or House of Representatives.

ACTIONS ON BILLS

Public hearing: Each bill is given a public hearing by one or more of the joint committees. Any person may appear at a hearing to favor or oppose a bill. Some committees will accept only written testimony on bills refiled from a previous session.

Report of committee: Recommendation of committee to which matter has been referred.

Adverse report: A committee may recommend (a) that the petitioner be given leave to withdraw, (b) that the proposal be referred to the next annual session, (c) in the case of recommendations of special reports, that no legislation is necessary, or (d) that the bill or resolve ought not to pass.

Second reading of a bill: Each bill or resolve is read by its title by the Clerk, prior to debate and action thereon.

Third reading of a bill: Each bill or resolve is read by its title by the Clerk, prior to debate and action thereon.

Engrossed bills: Bills and resolves which are before the House and Senate for final action after being typed on special parchment by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Conference committee: (Committees of conference) consist of three members of each branch appointed by the presiding officers to resolve differences between the branches as to a specific matter. Failure of the committees to agree, or failure of one branch to accept the committees' recommendation, ends the matter.

Enactment: Passage of the bill by the House or Senate.

Veto: The Governor returns the bill to the branch of origin with a statement of his objections.

Override: A two-thirds vote of members present in both branches may overturn the Governor's veto.

Pocket veto: Following prorogation, the Governor fails to sign a bill passed near the close of the session, leaving the Legislature no opportunity to override him.

LEGISLATIVE RULES:

House and Senate Rules: At the beginning of each biennial legislative session, special committees are established "to prepare rules for the government of the Senate (or House)," and a joint special committee "to prepare rules for the government of the two branches."

Adoption of rules: At the beginning of each legislative session, a motion is made and adopted in each branch that the rules of the preceding Senate or House be observed until others are adopted.

Joint Rule No. 10: All bills referred to committees before April 15 must be reported by the fourth Wednesday of April, and within ten days on all matters referred to them on and after the 15th of April.

Suspension of rules: In order to expedite the business of the Senate and the House of Representatives, rules are sometimes suspended, usually without objection. Rule No. 33 of the Joint Rules allows the alteration, suspension or rescission of all rules (with three exceptions) by a concurrent vote of two thirds of the members present and voting. A few rules require a four-fifths vote and a very few require unanimous consent for suspension.

PUBLICATIONS

Orders of the Day: Calendar of matters to be considered by the Senate or House of Representatives at each sitting.

Calendar: See Orders of the Day.

Daily List: Published on the afternoon of the day before scheduled hearings (and on the preceding Thursday for Monday hearings); lists the rooms, hours, and bills to be heard by each committee.

Legislative Bulletin of Committee Work: Published under the direction of the Committee on Rules of the Senate and House; contains a complete list of all bills, the committees to which they are assigned, the dates of public hearings, the committees' reports, and a history of action on each bill.

Senate and House Journals: Records of proceedings in each branch on each legislative day, including bills considered, amendments offered and votes taken.

A Proposal to Overhaul the Federal Criminal Laws

By LOUIS B. SCHWARTZ

A proposed Federal Criminal Code is taking shape before the Senate Judiciary Committee. If enacted into law it would be the first systematic statement of Federal penal law in the nation's history and would set the pattern of relationships between government and the citizen for years to come.

The bill, S.1, 750 pages long and formidably complex, covers the entire range of crime, punishment, and criminal procedure. Although it deals with profoundly controversial issues, the bill has the sponsorship of men who are otherwise far apart on the political spectrum because it indisputably includes hundreds of improvements.

However, the alliance seems unlikely to survive the debates that lie ahead in the Senate and House, as criticism and battle lines begin to form.

Existing Federal criminal law is a hodgepodge of new and ancient provisions. Similar conspiracies are punishable up to five years under one section, ten years under another, or one year under still a third.

Other offenses cover a wide range of misbehavior, from the trivial to the very serious, with no distinction in maximum penalty. Thus tax fraud now carries a single maximum penalty regardless of the amounts involved, although penalty distinctions based on amount are common in other fraud offenses. Present Federal statutes are silent as to defenses such as insanity, mistake entrapment and double jeopardy. The statutes lay down no Congressional policy on sentencing, probation, or parole, so that indefensible differences of treatment occur.

Two schools of thought have emerged in the debate over reform of Federal criminal laws: One group of reformers would like to extend the Government's power over individuals through wiretapping and other secret surveillance, increase the severity of penalties and officials' discretion in applying them, and restrict access to information about Government operations. Another group of reformers, the more liberal ones, are skeptical about the effectiveness of such measures and concerned about possible damage to the quality of civic life.

S.1 is essentially a product of the less liberal thinkers. Liberal reformers dominated the Federal criminal code proposed by the bipartisan National Commission on Reform of Federal Criminal Laws, headed by former Governor Pat Brown of California. Senators John McClellan and Roman Hruska were members of the Commission, and S.1 draws heavily on the Commission's recommendations. But in crucial respects S.1 departs from the Brown Commission recommendations, and incorporates features for which some of the more conservative Senators were unable to gain acceptance in the Commission.

Notably S.1 intensifies Government control of information, abolishes the insanity defense, maintains prison penalties for trivial marijuana offenses, restores capital punishment with vague statutory criteria for its imposition, and combines in its sentencing system long maximum prison terms with limited assurance of a rational policy of release on probation or parole.

President Ford may have reflected some of his thinking on the subject when he called last week for longer sentences for repeat offenders and other "tough" approaches to enforcement of the Federal criminal laws.

Freedom of the press. S.1 intensifies governmental control of information principally by creating a new felony: unauthorized disclosure of "classified" official information. No defense of improper classification would be permitted except under technical conditions so tightly drawn that the press in practical effect would be cut off from any information that the Government chose to regard as confidential.

Other aspects of S.1 seen by some as reinforcing bureaucratic control of news and public discussion are its expansive definition of espionage, and a loosely-defined offense of defrauding the Government (Section 1301) that might be applied to any action by a Federal official in violation of departmental regulations regarding disclosure to or contact with the press. The conspiracy provisions of S.1, when combined with the provisions on sedition, lend themselves to prosecution of radical talk that falls short of the "clear and present danger" of revolutionary violence required under the First Amendment before the Government may penalize political agitation.

Insanity as a defense. Present Federal law on the defense of insanity is judge-made rather than statutory, and consequently varies slightly among the 10 Federal judicial circuits. In substance, however, it provides that an accused person who perpetuates a criminal act while mentally ill shall be acquitted if, as a result of the mental illness, he was unable to refrain from offending.

Moral vs. Criminal Law

S.1 provides that insanity shall exculpate only if the mental illness blotted out some criminal intention that would ordinarily have to be proved in connection with the charged offense. On a charge of murder a defendant who cut his wife's throat would be acquitted if he was so crazy as to believe that he was merely slicing cheese. But if he insanely supposed that his wife was poisoning him or that God required him to sacrifice his wife, the defendant would have the criminal intent to kill and would thus be convicted under S.1.

In effect, S.1 abolishes the defense of insanity, since lack of the required criminal intent is a defense, independent of insanity, in any of the abolition of the defense of that guilt under the criminal law. divorced from moral responsibility, and terrent penalties of the law should not to individuals who, suffering from m are not deterrable.

Marijuana laws. Present laws as to small quantities of marijuana is in a Many states are repealing provisions tences or have dropped enforcement of "trafficking."

Possession of marijuana, in the slight and for personal use, would under Section 1, carry a 30-day maximum jail penalty for a second offense. Heavier to 14 years, would apply to "tra National Commission on Reform of Federal Laws recommended decriminalization for personal use, retaining only the small fines.

Capital punishment. Present Federal thornize capital punishment in certain penalty is imposed at the discretion of ing jury; no Federal prisoner has been the past 12 years. In 1972 the Supreme in Furman v. Georgia, that capital p unconstitutional when imposed under tary statutes that permit arbitrary persons to be executed.

S.1 makes capital punishment maintain classes of murder, treason, sabotage. It attempts to meet the cons quirement by specifying the types of example, where the death penalty must e.g., where murder is committed in heinous, cruel, or depraved manner," defendant is engaged in espionage, k arson, or in the case of killing for p

Opponents of this formulation a statutory criteria like heinous, cruel, are too vague to meet the constitu tions of the Furman decision. They seemingly arbitrary features of the clas example, murder in the course of k arson is a capital offense but not in course of rape, robbery or burglary. M mother to inherit her estate would n unless one hired someone else to do th

Sentencing. The controversy over S. system is essentially a debate over ho prison and nonprison alternatives so society without being needlessly h S.1 adds a parole period of up to five prison sentence, whereas the Brown proposed that parole be treated as a to confinement so that it reduces the pe detention under the prison sentence im

Similarly S.1 adds to the ordinary "extended" sentence for "dangerous s ers", whereas the Bronx Commissi position that "dangerous special offe be dealt with by reserving for the ranges of the regularly authorize sentence.

Louis B. Schwartz is Benjamin Fran of Criminal Law at the University of and director of the National Commissi of Federal Criminal Laws.

The New York Ad-Hoc Committee
To Defeat Senate Bill One,
St. Peter's Episcopal Church,
346 West 20 Street,
New York, New York 10011

Dear Friend,

Thank you for getting in touch with us. Enclosed you will find pertinent information regarding this very dangerous bill, Senate Bill One or as it is officially known as "the Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1975". It is very important that work in opposition to this bill increase.

We here at the Committee feel competent to respond to those who contact us with relevant printed information regarding the content and status of the bill. Where we could use your assistance concerns the organizational approach to the problem. What we are asking is this: If you are aware of any organizations that have passed resolutions against the bill, please let us know who these organizations are and if possible to send us copies of the resolutions. In addition and related to this request is to ask you to inform us of any organizations that you may be aware of that are in need of information on the bill ie. that should be made aware of the bill. We will respond in this case with an information packet on S-1 which we are in the process of putting together.

We must all face the reality that at this point we are involved in a kind of informational war regarding S-1. Many if not most individuals and organizations are simply in the dark on this thing. We must rectify this situation fast.

We trust that the enclosed information is sufficient for the time being. We advise you to write to NCARL, The National Committee Against Repressive Legislation, as well as the other organizations listed as to the ongoing progress of our work etc. Again, thank you for your concern. Be creative, use the information and together we will defeat this repressive legislation.

In Solidarity,

for the Committee.

CHRISTIAN SOCIAL ACTION NEWS ALERT

The Christian Social Action Committee
Metropolitan Community Church of Greater St. Louis
P.O. Box 3147
St. Louis, Mo. 63130

WE have a very rare opportunity to do something nationally which could be of great benefit to all our sisters and brothers. This opportunity is the chance to express our heart felt support for the Koch Bill (HR 2998), which if passed, will amend the present Civil Rights Act to include protection to gay people from the present unenlightened arbitrary prejudice that each of us suffers every day.

YES, it can be frightening for some of us to stand up for what we think is right, particularly when we are in the minority, but unless we do make this effort social and legal progress for the gay community will never occur. We have often been told that the Lord has a purpose for the lives of every one of us. We, we believe this opportunity is as good a purpose as any of us could find.

AN explanation of the Koch Bill's history and content will be found on the reverse side of this letter. What we are asking you to do is to simply write your local Congressional Representative and urge him or her to co-sponsor this legislation. When you write, please make a copy and turn the copy in at church for later forwarding to UFMCC's Washington Field Office's Congressional File. We will take care of mailing all the copies. Your letter should be addressed as follows:

The Honorable _____
House of Representatives
House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

Your local Missouri and Illinois Congressional Representatives are listed below. The major townships that make up each district are also included. If you are not sure in which district you reside, a phone call to the League of Women voters (429-6161 in St. Louis) or to the local Board of Election Commissioners (453-4201 in St. Louis, 889-2255 in St. Louis County) will get you an answer.

LET'S all work together to help put an end to being second class citizens.

Yours in Christ,

Christian Social Action Committee

KOCH BILL: HR 2998

Rep. Edward I. Koch has introduced the national gay civil rights bill. The New York City Democrat introduced the bill, which is identical to the one Rep. Bella Abzug had introduced in the last Congress, on the first day of the 95th Congress, January 4, 1977.

The bill was re-introduced on Feb. 2, 1977, as HR 2998. It was originally numbered HR 451 when it was introduced for the first time on Jan. 4, but because of an error in the first draft of the bill, the new number, HR 2998, is the one we will be using this year.

The bill would amend the Civil Rights Act of 1964 by adding the words "affectional or sexual preference" to each list of human conditions for which people can not be discriminated against. The bill goes to the Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights of the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee. Hopefully, Rep. Don Edwards of California, chair of the subcommittee, can be convinced to hold hearings on the bill this year.

Last year, at the end of the 94th Congress, Ms. Abzug had gotten 28 members of Congress to co-sponsor this legislation with her. She gave up her seat in the House of Representatives to run for the Senate, but she lost the New York Senate primary to Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who went on to defeat incumbent Senator James Buckley.

Early in December, 1976, Jean O'Leary, Co-Executive Director of the National Gay Task Force, and Adam DeBaugh, Social Action Director of UFMCC's Washington Field Office, visited Rep. Koch and formally asked him if he would introduce the gay rights bill. He was eager to do so and his staff informally polled last year's co-sponsors, seeking their support for this year.

Rep. Koch sent a "Dear Colleague" letter to all members of Congress on January 26, explaining the bill and urging them to co-sponsor it with him. So far, 37 members, including all but one of the original sponsors, have currently co-sponsored this new bill. They are Les AuCoin, OR; Herman Badillo, NY; Jonathan Bingham, NY; Yvonne Braithwaite Burke, CA; George Brown, CA; John Burton, CA; Shirley Chisholm, NY; *William (Bill) Clay, MO; *Cardiss Collins, IL; John Conyers, MI; Ronald Dellums, CA; *Charles Diggs, MI; Walter Jautroy, Washington, D.C.; Donald Fraser, MN; Michael Harrington, MA; Augustus Hawkins, CA; Elizabeth Holtzman, NY; Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey, CA; *Stewart McKinney, CT; *Abner Mikva, IL; George Miller, CA; Norman Mineta, CA; Parren Mitchell, MD; Robert N.C. Nix, PA; Charles Rangel, NY; Frederick Richmond, NY; Benjamin Rosenthal, NY; *James Schuerer, NY; Patricia Schroeder, CO; Stephen Solarz, NY; Fortney (Pete) Stark, CA; *Louis Stokes, OH; Gerry Studds, MA; Henry Waxman, CA; *Theodore Weiss, NY; *Toby Moffet, CT; Richard Ottinger, NY; ( indicates a Member who did not co-sponsor in the 94th Congress).

S.1: A NEW ATTEMPT AT LEGISLATIVE REPRESSION by Lindsay Audin

When the Nixon regime fell, many Americans breathed a sigh of relief. "Fascism" they thought, "has been defeated again". As recent events have shown, however, domestic repression hasn't disappeared - it has only changed form. One aspect that has remained intact though is the attempt to legislate oppression.

Under the guise of reform, a bill has been proposed to clean up the United States Code (the 50 volumes that make up all Federal law). Entitled the "Criminal Justice Codification, Revision and Reform Act of 1975", the bill is a synthesis of two prior bills, both attempting to clarify the myriad statutes governing criminal acts. One of those bills was prepared by the Nixon-Mitchell Justice Department and a significant portion of its chapters are maintained in the new bill. Those paragraphs include resurrection of the death penalty and Smith Act, restrictions on free speech and assembly, government secrecy, expanded police powers and a distinctly anti-labor stance.

THE BILL

Designated S.1 and H.R. 3907, the 700 page law consolidates and alters literally hundreds of older statutes, some of them having never been used. While such reform is an absolute necessity, the net effect of the law is to expand the power of the Federal government and create a framework of potentially repressive regulations. To detail them would take pages, so suffice it to say that most activism is proscribed; marches near courthouses, official proceedings or the President can be banned; warrantless wiretaps are cleared for local as well as federal police; mere advocacy of revolutionary change is heavily punished; obscenity is loosely defined; death is returned as a "deterrent" to conspiracy as well as murder; release of government data can be severely punished - and on and on. Strangely enough, the new version has actually moderated the Nixon-Mitchell bill (previously designated S.1400) in many ways while worsening the situation in at least two important arenas:

- the definition of "extortion" is expanded to potentially include certain tactics used in collective bargaining, and
- a "special dangerous offender" classification is created to deal with multiple offenders and ring leaders of conspiracies (the statute would allow tripling of the sentence of such an individual for any felony conviction).

Between these two paragraphs alone lies enough political clout to frighten most 'movement' leadership into thinking twice before taking any action. While both are carefully qualified as to how they may be interpreted, it is clear that the intent is to repress "troublemakers" in the unions and in the streets.

To be fair, the bill also creates such good legislation as: appellate review of sentencing, political campaign reform, white collar crime statutes and a system of crime victim compensation. It is also repeals absurd laws against "detaining a U.S. carrier pigeon" or "seducing a female steamship passenger". - but it still appears that, on balance, its passage would do much more harm than good.

THE BACKERS AND THE BATTLE

In the Senate, numerous members of the conservative Senate Judiciary Committee are co-sponsoring it, including:

McClellan (Ark.), Hruska (Neb.) (who together co-sponsored S.1400), Bayh (Ind.), Griffin (Mich.), Mansfield (Mont.) (Senate Majority Leader), Moss (Utah), Scott (Penn.) (Senate Minority Leader), Taft (Ohio) and Tower (Texas).

In the House, the only sponsor (as of this writing) is Wiggins (Calif), Nixon's major defender during the impeachment debates and senior Republican on the Subcommittee for Criminal Justice (the first House subcommittee to review it prior to the full House Judiciary Committee).

The present status of the bill (as of the Easter recess) is as follows:

Senate - Subcommittee on Criminal Laws and Procedures held hearings on the old bills until last September and synthesized the new bill; Senate Judiciary Committee may hold further on S.1 (but none was scheduled at this time, nor were they expected to be extensive since S.1 came from that Committee)

House - Subcommittee on Criminal Justice will start hearings in April or May. It is in this House Subcommittee that pressure may be applied most effectively at this time. (Of course, contact with the entire House Judiciary Committee is helpful on such legislation.) The present membership of the Subcommittee is not encouraging, however, and deserves concentrated attention:

Democrats

Hungate (Missouri), chairperson
Mann (S. Carolina)
Thornton (Arkansas)
Russo (Ill.) freshman
Holtsman (N.Y.)

Republicans

Wiggins (Calif)
Hyde (Ill.) freshman

Note that both representatives from Illinois are freshman and may be amenable to contact. Hungate and Holtsman are open minded and could be instrumental in stopping or altering this bill. Hungate, the chair, should be sent copies of letters to other representatives. The two Southern Democrats are not known liberals and, as mentioned, Wiggins is co-sponsoring the bill and is certain to pressure the freshman Republican to "get in line". At the end of this article appears a listing of the entire House Judiciary Committee. If and when this bill begins to move, those representatives (as well as your own) should be contacted.

SOME AMMUNITION

One way to get a legislator to become aware of a bill is to ask him/her a specific question about it. This will require a legislative aide to be put on the track to either check it out (and thereby become more familiar with the law) or to put in a call to a subcommittee counsel (which alerts the committee to citizen concern). Here are a few such specifics:

1. why do we need a "special dangerous offender" section if our prisons are really designed to rehabilitate rather than just punish?
2. is any governmental body banned from official wiretapping? (not really)
3. what is a "temporary residence of the President" and can it include any space the President passes through? (under one section, any area designated by the Sec. of the Treasury can be put off limits to demonstrators if called a "temporary residence of the President")
4. how is it possible (via a combination of statutes) that a merciful judge can give immediate probation for a felony conviction punishable by a maximum of three years imprisonment by forcing commitment to a mental institution for up to five years?
5. do we really need a separate law against flag burning?
6. why is "obscene material" legal when prescribed by a doctor?
7. what is "national defense information" and why is such a new definition needed when it is already possible to "classify" such information?
8. in these days of liberal treatment of marijuana possession offenses, why is a one month jail term still being proposed as the penalty even when so sale is even implied?
9. if the farm workers or truckers went on strike just before picking or shipping time (thus threatening a drop in value of a food product) and their employer felt afraid that not granting legitimate demands would result in violence, why is this now listed as "extortion"?

It's always a good idea to request paragraph numbers on each of the above regulations to be certain they don't just hand out some quicky response. If other questions are desired, they may be developed from the accompanying explanatory volumes that come with the Senate version, or from a thorough reading of the bill itself.

To keep abreast of this law, one of the easiest ways is to get on the mailing list of the National Committee Against Repressive Legislation, 3306 Ross Place, NW, Washington, D.C. 20008 which has been watchdogging it for some time.

A FEW PARTING SHOTS

Many of the sections of this law are presently on the books and will still be there if it isn't passed. There is a need for reform and we cannot cop out by just calling for S.1's defeat. Only by getting decent legislation on the books can we hope to maintain our liberties as we work for social change. Needed in this bill, for example, is some sort of preamble statement like "nothing in this act shall be construed as restrictive of the customary exercise of the rights of speech, assembly, privacy, petition of grievances, etc.". Admittedly this phrase would not stop a John Mitchell from arresting another 12,000 people next Mayday but it would help guarantee that the precedents set by the anti-war and civil rights movements would be recognized. And while we now know that the law is not a sufficient tool for changing society, it is a necessary one.

S.1: Keystone to Legal Repression - by Lindsay Audin, New York Ad Hoc Committee to Defeat S.1

As democracy has gone on the defensive in many nations, certain parallels may be seen amongst the repressive tools brought into play. Intelligence agencies and heavy armaments, for example, as well as economic strife, all seem common in news releases about states falling under martial law. Occasionally missed, however, is some form of underlying law or statute legitimizing the declaration of a national emergency and/or the arrest of governmental opponents. It's usually there, though often of extremely dubious nature.

In the United States, there exists a body of law, called the United States Code (USC for short) that contains all federal criminal law. If such repressive legislation did exist, it would be part of that Code. There are numerous statutes in the Code that are repressive but many (if not most) have been blunted by court action or age. There is no overall law that threatens our liberties like, for example, the Internal Security Act recently used to quell dissent in India.

One is, however, on its way through Congress with the backing of the President, the Senate Majority Leader, the Senate Minority Leader and one of the senior Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee. Presently called the Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1975 and designated S.1 and H.R. 3907 in the Senate and House respectively, the bill is a massive (753 pages) compendium of past laws changed to skirt Federal Court decisions, present laws extended or modified to mesh into a catch-all web and new law created to further restrict the exercise of constitutional rights. It has a unique heritage: the original versions were parented by Richard Nixon, John Mitchell and Sam Ervin. To fully grasp the meaning and intent of the bill, some history is necessary.

In 1966, Johnson appointed a commission to review the rather motley collection of federal criminal statutes and put them into some order. Called the Brown Commission after its chair, the former governor of California, Pat Brown, it created a document that was relatively liberal with only a few frightening shortcomings. It did not, however, measure up to the standards of its recipient, Richard Nixon. At his behest, the Justice Department, then under John Mitchell, rewrote it. So did Sam Ervin's Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights. From these efforts came S.1400 and S.1, respectively, in the 93rd Congress. After many Senate Judiciary Committee hearings, the two bills were combined into S.1 in this, the 94th, Congress. Its passage through the Senate Judiciary Committee has netted many co-sponsors including: McClellan (Ark.), Hruska (Neb.) (who together co-sponsored S.1400), Bayh (Ind.), Griffin (Mich.), Mansfield (Mont.) (Senate Majority Leader), Moss (Utah), Scott (Penn.) (Senate Minority Leader), Taft (Ohio) and Tower (Texas).

As of July 1st, 1975, the bill had completed hearings before the Subcommittee on Rules and Procedures (chaired by Hruska) and was being prepared for consideration by the full Senate Judiciary Committee (chaired by James Eastland). It is not expected to meet major opposition due to its bi-partisan support; thus, plans are to get it to the floor by Fall. In the House, the bill was greatly delayed by the impeachment and Rockefeller hearings any may start its Judiciary hearings before the Fall. The first hearings in the House will be held by the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, chaired by Hungate (D. Mo.). Its membership changed drastically after the Nixon collapse and now includes five Democrats and two Republicans. Aside from Hungate, the Democrats have: Mann (S.C.), Thornton (Ark.), Holtsman (N.Y.), and a freshman, Russo (Ill.). The Republicans have Wiggins (Calif.), Nixon's chief defender and the sponsor of the House version of S.1 (H.R. 3907), and a freshman, Hyde (Ill.). To get it past Hungate and Holtsman, both outspoken liberals, Wiggins would need to hold the Republican freshman while cajoling both Southern Democrats. Stranger things have happened.

But why should such a bill enjoy the possibility of Congressional consideration? Why wasn't it immediately tabled as soon as proposed? Theoreticians may someday write books on that topic but for right now, several simple explanations will suffice:

1. there is a need for criminal justice reform. The present Code includes such dated crimes as "seducing a female steamship passenger" or "detaining a U.S. carrier pigeon" that cry out for repeal.
2. there is a need for standardizing penalties for similar crimes.
3. new concepts such as crime victim compensation, federal legal defender services and appellate sentence review deserve the chance to be tried.

4. the scales are tipping toward the re-assertion of state power after a time of civil disobedience and organized challenges to federal authority.

S.1 accomplishes all these things. An in his introduction of S.1 in January of 1975, McClellan called for bi-partisan support even if there was disagreement on any specific parts - or else no reform bill would get passed. Unfortunately, it appears that certain Congresspeople have supported the bill after a cursory reading without considering the ways it could be used to repress.

THE BILL ITSELF

And what are some of those ways? To detail all of them would take pages but following are several of the more conspicuous:

- chapter 2 includes a section that asserts U.S. jurisdiction where no nation has jurisdiction (such as high seas or a country recently visited by revolution) should an American be involved in a crime (s.204)
- chapter 3 covers culpable states of mind in such a manner as to make defenses difficult and sets the stage for elimination of insanity as a valid plea in chapter 5 (s.522)
- chapter 5 also legalizes entrapment (s.551)
- chapter 10 extends conspiracy penalties to be as severe as though the crime had been committed (s.1002e)
- chapter 11 is fraught with controls on governmental information making exposes' like the Pentagon Papers punishable at several points prior to publication (s.1121 - 1124) including preclusion of incorrect classification of a document as a defense
- that same chapter includes statutes that could easily constrain draft resistance and military counselling or organization (s.1115 - 1117) as well as declare as "sabotage" the "delaying of a public facility"
- s.1103 recreates the Smith Act which bans membership in any organization calling for "overthrow of a government...at the earliest possible time or as speedily as circumstances permit"
- the definitions of chapter 11 allow inclusion of bugging information and much other data in the restricted categories of government information, thus significantly blunting the Freedom of Information Act
- chapter 13 broadly restricts demonstrations by declaring it "obstruction of a government function" if one "impairs or perverts" such a function by "physical interference or obstruction" (s.1302); it declares any building and the surrounding 200 feet housing a court, or person involved in a court proceeding, to be off limits to one who "parades, pickets, displays a sign, uses a sound amplifying device or otherwise engages in a demonstration..." It also declares misbehavior that obstructs administration of justice outside a court as criminal contempt (s.1351) and makes disorderly conduct a federal crime (s.1334)
- if that isn't bad enough, it also broadly defines "hindering law enforcement" to include any aid to a fugitive including just keeping quiet about one if you happen to have information (s.1311)
- statutes in chapter 11, 15 and 17 carry a distinctly anti-labor capability: "impairing military effectiveness" (s.1112) could cover wildcat strikes at any defense related plant (which can include a large part of manufacturing facilities); "interfering with a federal benefit" (s.1503) can cover protesting the use of federal troops during a postal strike or any federally hired scab labor; "extortion" (s.1722) has been specifically designed to overcome previous Supreme Court decisions excluding assumed threats during collective bargaining; as detailed in the two volumes accompanying the early version of S.1, extortion would include any case in which fear had been felt by an employer even when no threat of violence had been made, as long as money transferral was involved (the New York "Fear City" campaign may fall under this proposed statute)
- chapter 18 subchapter A deals with drugs and provides heavy penalties, including ten year minimum sentences for "trafficking in an opiate" (s.1811) but is "liberal" on marijuana, reducing maximum sentences to 30 days and penalties to $10,000 for holding less than 8 ounces of grass (s.1813)
- subchapter D of chapter 18 covers rioting (5 or more people make a riot) by extending the 1968 law used against the Chicago 7 (s.1831); it also covers obscene material with a broad definition (s.1842), makes prostitution a federal offense (s.1843) and re-affirms disorderly conduct as a federal offense (s.1861)
- chapters 21 and 23 cover probation and sentencing in a manner that could mandate commitment to a mental institution or suitable employment or "conscientious pursuit of a course of study" for up to five years even if the maximum sentence for the charge was only 3 years, or up to one year for infractions punishable by a maximum of 5 days imprisonment (s.2101, 2103, 2301)

- chapter 23 also creates the "dangerous special offender", a classification reserved for criminal repeaters or those exhibiting "special skill or expertise in facilitating...or organizing or concealment of criminal conduct or...the avoidance of detection..." Such offenders are awarded triple length sentences and may also be granted minimum sentences prior to any consideration for parole (s.2301c, 2302b)
- chapter 24 restores the death penalty for eight crimes including "treason"
- chapter 31 extends authorization of wiretaps; requires landlords, custodians and telephone company employees to aid in placing bugs and whose silence about such placement is demanded; details warrantless wiretapping procedures and allows Presidential exemption from wiretapping restrictions in the pursuit of "national security" such as "against any clear and present danger to the structure or existence of the government"
- chapter 36B covers mental defects in such a manner that accused individuals declared incompetent to stand trial could be held in a mental institution indefinitely even if all initial charges were dropped; it also allows transferral of inmates who have fully served their terms to mental institutions indefinitely - both situations at the behest of the head of the facility in which they are incarcerated (e.g., the warden)
- various conforming amendments are created to slightly alter present legislation such as a statute (s.127) declaring use of the armed forces as a posse without Constitutional or Congressional authority (i.e., use of the military in a police manner such as is done in a coup d'etat or at Wounded Knee) to be a misdemeanor; s.209 declares any space cordoned off by the Secretary of the Treasury as a temporary residence of the President to be off limits to any disorderly conduct.

The combinations of some of the above also create repressive legislation. For example, discovery of a government bug ⁱⁿ your house could not be legally revealed to anyone except an agent already authorized to know of its existence!

THE STRUGGLE AHEAD

To fight this bill, various civil libertarian groups have testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee and plan to do so before the House Judiciary Committee when it holds hearings. The basic strategy is to bump it back to committee for further work until the Congressional session ends. The bill needs total revision, however. It cannot simply be amended due to the myriad interlocks of definitions and statutes. Thus, the word is to pressure to kill it instead of reform it.

Elizabeth Holtsman of New York is already on record as unalterably opposed to the bill and the majority of the Congressional Black Caucus has come out against it. Of course, the Left has strongly denounced it, along with such diverse groups as the New York City Bar Association and "Overdrive", the trucker's newsletter. The New York and Los Angeles Times have opposed significant sections in recent editorials. On the other hand, the majority of legislative aides contacted in a straw poll were unfamiliar with the bill. Much work remains to be done to educate our representatives and fellow citizens to the this threat. A simple plan of attack is being followed by the New York Ad Hoc Committee to Defeat S.1:

1. generate awareness by sending requests for the bill and specific questions on it to Congressional offices (see question list); this requires someone to either read over the bill or forward the request to some other authority; the questions really need no answer, however. Just posing them is educational for an aide or representative
 2. create a speaker's bureau of local constitutional lawyers to reach out to inform community groups of all types
 3. hold a news conference with several prominent persons, announcing public hearings by local representatives on the bill (especially good if local rep is on the Judiciary Committee)
 4. distribution of "white papers" on specific aspects of the bill (e.g., as it affects labor, minority groups, activists) to encourage action by these segments of the population
-plus of course, literature, delegations, and maybe the now-institutionalized march or rally.

The primary organization working nationally on the bill is the National Committee Against Repressive Legislation with offices in Los Angeles and Washington and the South. Other groups with relevant material include the American Civil Liberties Union and the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression. The legislative offices of the American Friends Service Committee and the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom are also taking an active interest in the defeat of S.1 (see address list at the end of this article). There is no dearth of organizational interest, only of citizen participation.

Many people feel that Congress would never allow such a bill to pass. Only the naive can still believe such a fantasy in light of recent Congressional fumbling. Now bearing Ford's blessing under the new cliché "domestic tranquillity" (read: law and order), this bill is seen as the basis for extension of the Omnibus Crime Bill of 1968 (itself a repressive document) and the rationale for continuation of Federal police funding via the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA). Its defeat is mandatory to continual exercise of civil liberties. There will be time to write new reform legislation in the future - and it is needed - but the lessons of India and other former democracies must be learned now. Defeat S.1!

postscript: as this paper was being written, it was learned that Birch Bayh of Indiana, co-sponsor of S.1 and Presidential candidate, had repudiated his support of the bill. The door is open to pressuring other sponsors to withdraw their support and end any opportunity for this bill to gain further support.
